Average White Band, One Look Over My Shoulde

Here we are - untogether
Wish I could say that it isn't so
We've put each other through so much pain
It doesn't make sense anymore
Still it tears me up inside to think that I might never see you again

I can't pretend We've been through so much stormy weather While we've been together I can't coldly walk away I gotta have

One look over my shoulder One last look in your eyes The outlook may be colder is this really good-bye

It's too late - got to face it,
We've come to a fork in the road
The signpost shows a different way
And I realize
I've got to stop thinking with my heart
Make a new start
We've come through so much stormy weather
Tried to stay together
I can't simply walk away without

One look over my shoulder One last look in your eyes The outlet may be colder is this really good-bye
