

Backseat Goodbye, Hello Yellow

Hello, how are you?
I'm pretty sure we should be best friends
I'll walk you to school
And tell you, you look pretty each new day
We'll learn about philosophy by drawing on our arms
And build ourselves an alright house made out of Uno cards
They'll say we're unconventional and maybe a little crazy
We'll ask 'em what's wrong with that?
Yeah, we'll ask 'em what's wrong with that?
Hello, how are you?
I'm pretty sure we should be best friends
I'll walk you to the store
And buy you fancy clothes and shiny pins
We'll learn about biology by taking off our clothes
And buy some yellow spray paint to make a yellow brick road
Say we're three dimensional and maybe a little lazy
We'll ask 'em what's wrong with that?
Yeah, we'll ask 'em what's wrong with that?
Hello, how are you?
I'm pretty sure that we should be best friends
I'll walk you to the ocean
And make you a castle of sand to live in
We'll learn about geography by sleeping in the grass
Our bodies'll twitch to wake us up when we fall asleep too fast
They'll say we're unbelievable and maybe a little trendy
We'll ask 'em what's wrong with that?
Yeah, we'll ask 'em what's wrong with that?
Hello, how are you?
I'm pretty sure you're pretty much all I need
