

Barbra Streisand, All Of My Life

I was alone,
You were alone,
Parallel lines that touched one another.
Just feeling our way,
Lost in the dark,
Drawn to each other...

So much to say, and so much to do.
So much of you for me to discover.
Like what makes you laugh,
And what makes you cry,
How does a friend become a lover, too...

I've waited all of my life to find
Someone who'd need my heart and read my mind.
To light my days and warm my nights.

Someone I know I could call,
My someone for all my life.

Looking at you, looking at me,
Loving the look of love that I see there.
I find when I look deep in your eyes
Reflections of me there.

I've waited all of my life to find
Someone who'd need my heart and read my mind.
To light my days and warm my nights.
Now all at once in your arms.
Everything's new.
All that I feel, tells me it's true.
All that I ask
Is all of my life... with you.
