

Barbra Streisand, Golden Dawn

One golden dawn
One summer night
With nothing left to say
We let the dream begin
It was carried on the wind
And it wandered away
One golden sky
One spark of light
Forever will remain
And the song of the storm
Brought us close, kept us warm
All alone making love
In the rain
Gone is the world outside
Home on the turning tide
True love will find the sun
And know the reason why
You make me hunger for
You whispered, "Mi amor";
Over the ocean's roar
And the night will become
Our golden dawn
Two hearts as one
No tears to cry
With you I have it all
If love can never die
I'm not afraid to fly
But how far must I fall
One silver song
One lullaby
For all the love we make
It's the look in your eyes
It's the moon on the rise
It's the sound of the heart
That you break
Gone is the dark of night
Call on the early glow
Send down the birds of love
That circle us below
And still I will hunger for
You whispering, "Mi amor";
Over the ocean's roar
And your arms reach for me
And the shine on the sea
And the night will become
Our golden dawn
