

Beck, Still Missing (Royksopp Remix)

I prayed heaven today would bring it's hammer down on me and pound you out of my head I can't think with you in it

I dragged all that I own down a dirt road to find you and my shoes worn out and used they can't take me much furter something always takes the place of

missing pieces
you can take and
put together even though you know there's something missing the sun burned a hole in my roof i can't seem to fix it and i hope the rain doesn't come and wash me down the gutter

takes the place of
you can take and
put together even though
something always missing always someone missing something

i can't see her hollow eyes i'm walking along with my boots full of rocks i can't believe these tears are mine I'll give them to you to keep 'em in a box
