

Belinda Carlisle, Always Breaking My Heart

Is this what you want?
Every finger points at me
This might be funny if it wasn't such a tragedy
After a while
It gets hard to smile
And pretend that things are OK

So when you need me in the middle of the night
I won't be there cos
You're always breaking my heart
You're always breaking my heart
You always tear it apart
Yeah oh yeah

So cross yourself now
Get down on your knees and pray
But no powers from heaven
Could ever take the darkness away
I tried climbing the walls
But you built them too tall
So it's time I walk away now

And when you call me in the middle of the night
There's no one there cos
You're always breaking my heart
You're always breaking my heart
You always tear it apart
Yeah oh yeah

Reach out a hand to hold
Inside when the distance calls
Two hearts into their phase
Remember that first embrace
But I, can't worry, anymore

So when you need me in the middle of the night
I won't be there cos
You're always breaking my heart
You're always breaking my heart
You always tear it apart
Oh yeah
You're always breaking my heart
You're always breaking my heart
You always tear it apart
Yeah oh yeah
