

Belinda Carlisle, Should I Let You In

Should I let you in
Into my house with its concrete walls
Should I let you in
Into my room with its curtains drawn

I want to open up
And let you walk right through my door
Can you tell me
Is it worth the risk any more
Should I let you in

Should I let you in
Should I let you in
Should I let you in

Should I let you in
Into my far from perfect place
Should I let you see
Where I keep my secrets safe
I want to open up
But I've been hurt this way before
Can you tell me
Is it worth the risk any more
Should I let you in

Through my window
I see you now
You're looking in
I'm looking out
My heart will make up its mind somehow

Should I let you in
Into my house
Should I let you in
Inside these walls
Should I let you in
Into my heart
Should I let you in
Inside my world

Should I let you in
Should I let you in
