

Beloved (US), Only Our Faces Hide

We drive to keep our conscience clear
Imagine closure seeking deep into the air.
Our loss is not gaining new ground at all.
I fight this everyday
Against this ever-changing face
I fight you everyday
Against your ever-changing face.
With a fresh sense of purpose and direction
We cannot hide now from ourselves,
In disguises all our own.
Still we can't escape at all.
We run from things that can be seen
But if we would close our eyes
We would see the real threat against us.
I won't run from this world.
Only our faces hide
The quiet defeat inside.
Only our faces show
Reflections of so much more.