

Ben Harper, Suzie Blue

Won't you sing me the blues?
Won't you sing me the blues?
Sing me something my heart can use
Misery loves a symphony

Does your face, your pretty face
Get lost in the crowd
And you say no ones' there
To hear you cry outloud
What will you do suzie blue?

Where'd you learn to do that so well?
Where'd you learn to do that so well?
I guess that would be like kiss and tell
If its a secret why did you show me?

But you're far away
From the love you used to hold
Don't sit and watch yourself grow old
The day is new suzie blue
The day is new suzie blue

Real life has let you down
Real life has let you down
Someone stripped the jewels from your crown
Everybody owes somebody something

Kisses from heaven in your arms
And we'll make love to the memories
They will always see us through, Suzie Blue
The day is new, Suzie Blue
The days is new, Suzie Blue
