

Big Sugar, Lost And Found

(G. Johnson/P. Ballantyne)

If only you could see behind my eyes
You would count the stars that fill the skies
I've tried to pretend that they're not there
But now I look around and see them everywhere

From the first time I heard that sound
I couldn't wrap my head around it
I was lost until I found it

I've walked a million miles in these same shoes
Wearing down the street the lonesome use
But something came and stopped me where I stand
I saw the sun reach down and kiss the land

From the first time we touched the ground
I couldn't wrap my arms around it
I was lost until I found it
From the first time I heard that sound
I couldn't wrap my head around it
I was lost until I found it

If only you could see behind my eyes
You would count the stars that fill the skies
This love is gonna wake you back to life
This love is gonna shake you back to life

From the first time we touched the ground
I couldn't wrap my arms around it
I was lost until I found it
From the first time I heard that sound
I couldn't wrap my head around it
I was lost until I found it
I was lost until I found it
I was lost until I found it
