

Bishop Allen, Flight 180

it's like you took the giant christmas tree at rockafella center and you spread it paper thin but you were careful not to break a bulb and then you mirrored it a million fold to shine
and shine
and shine along and there's a tap on my knee bring up your seat back please, she says but I know she means

if you feel like dancing dance with me

some of the lights below shine directly on the people I know their lives take such strange shapes but how together they appear from above I guess that could be love my friends
my friends
I'm coming home and then the captain speaks it's clear and 44 degrees but I know he means

but I been out past the lights where the jagged black begins i let my heels sink in the sand and the ocean sucked it's teeth and the cold cuts through my feet and stretched out on and on and on how disconnected I can feel on the ground it's like I'm shining all alone and i don't wanna be so before i go to bed tonight i'll signal up to the passing flight hit the lights

the lights
the lights

and now the man in the middle seat recites the times tables audibly
but i know he means
[repeat]
