

Black Milk, If The Gods (May Know Your Name)

was I too loud to hear you screaming was I a fool to dream it once again was I too calm to feel to steal

some ordinary whispers calling out your name did I foresee the lies I've forgotten did I expect scars upon your face I couldn't tame my mind and blame the rhymes that fell to pieces broken on your trace

but maybe I was ment to hear your promise and get through it all again and all the lines will mend and lead the hopeless
if the gods may know your name can't you believe in the voice I followed can't you forgive the choices I have made and if I need you now somehow it's funny I'm still fighting though it's far too late

but maybe I was ment to hear your promise
and get through it all again
and all the lines will mend
and lead the hopeless
if the gods may know your name
if the gods may know your name and I tear everything apart but there's nothing to expect from a bleeding heart

from a bleeding heart

but maybe I was ment to hear your promise
and get through it all again
and all the lines will mend
and lead the hopeless
if the gods may know your name and maybe I was ment to hear your promise

and get through it all again
and all the lines will mend
and lead the hopeless
if the gods may know your name
if the gods may know your name
if the gods may know your name
if the gods may know your name
if the gods may know your name
if the gods may know your name
if the gods may know your name
if the gods may know your name
if the gods may know your name
if the gods may know your name