

Blackburn Fiona, If It's All The Same To You

If it's all the same to you, I'll stay here by your side,
Underneath the stars, we'll watch the rising tide.
We'll look out through the night and say a prayer or two,
And morning will come easier to you.
If it's all the same to you, I'll stay and hold your hand,
And on into the dawn we'll walk along the sand.
And maybe in the morning air we'll breathe a sigh or two,
And daylight will come easier to you.
If it's all the same to you, I'll be here through the day
And when the sadness comes, remind you of the way
That when the sunlight dazzles on the sea and you turn to face the view,
Evening comes easier to you.
If it's all the same to you, I'll stay here by your side,
Underneath the stars, we'll watch the rising tide.
We'll look out through the night, say a prayer or two,
Morning will come easier to you.
