Bobby Goldsboro, Voodoo Woman

Voo Doo Woman Bobby Goldsboro

You make a rose afraid to grow. You make a wind forget to blow. You make the sun up in the sky forget to shine, And you are driving me out of my mind, now.

You make a bell forget to ring. You make a bird forget to sing. You make a weeping willow tree forget to cry, And you bring clouds that cover up the sky now.

You're a voodoo woman, that's plain to see. You're a voodoo woman, so stay away from me.

You make a dog forget to growl. You make the wind forget to howl. And voodoo woman you break every heart you see, So voodoo woman stay away from me now.

You're a voodoo woman, that's plain to see, You're a voodoo woman, so stay away from me.

You make a dog forget to growl. You make the wind forget to howl. And voodoo woman you break every heart you see, So voodoo woman stay away from me.
