

Bonfire, Know Right Now

Day by day we live
Like everything's OK
But sometimes we realize
We were going separate ways

Night by night we sit
And try to talk it out
Stuck in lies and selfish pride
Trapped in our doubts

We call each other names
We scream, we fight tooth 'n nail
You drive me crazy with your childish games

I know right now
You should turn and walk out the door
'Coz I just can't take it anymore

Time is passing by
The pain remains the same
We search for comfort everywhere
We both must be insane

What happened to the flame
That used to burn so strong
I still can see some sparks in the ash
But not enough to keep us warm

I recall the days of laughter
I think about the morning after
I still hope it's not too late, not too late

I know right now
You should turn and walk out the door
'Coz I just can't take it anymore and I know somehow that we'll both be back for more remember the words that we once swore
