

Bonnie Pink, Wildflower

I'm not a teacher, nor a preacher
I think I'm street wise
But I trip all the time
My lips are too small and you're too tall
Hard for me to stroke your hair and do clear the air

I wanna feel we're the same under the skin
How can I be a queen without the King?
It's never easy to form a ring
I'd do anything to be your battery
I can be anything to make you happy
I swear to God

I was there when your heart was broken
I was there when you blamed yourself
I was there when you were giving up
Wish I'd had a word to extend

We live in a zoo, wondering who trusts who Yes, sometimes they are flaky and too greedy
I'm not a vower, but trying to be a wildflower supposed to keep your peace of mind but to leave you behind

I wanna feel we're the same as peas in a pod
For me to stay away from you is odd
I see a long path we've trod
I'd do anything if you want me to You're the rain to make me bloom
So you're allowed to cry

I was there when your heart was broken
I was there when you were under clouds
I was there when you were raving at the world
I was there for you

I've been watching you become tougher
Now the rainy season is over
I'm scared, to tell the truth
Cause you're so free to fly away

I was there when your heart was broken
I was there when you were looking down
I was there when you lost your way
Wish I'd had a word to extend
Did you know?

I was there when your heart was broken
I was there when you blamed yourself
I was there when you were giving up
Wish I'd had a word to extend
