

BrainStorm, Before The Time Has Come To Leave

I've never thought about if I do love you It's somehow never been there on my mind Why should I care about things that are above my comprehension You made yourself a victim of love
Why should I pay attention

You look so disappointed tonight
Do we have any reason not to go out and make it all right, before the time has come to leave you

You always hesitate before you answer Your answers always have been so untrue So why should I pretend to believe in the bright future
You made yourself a betrayer of love
Why should I call you my lover

You look so disappointed tonight
Do we have any reason not to
go out and make it all right,
before the time has come to leave you

Your phone is always busy when I'm calling Your neighbours say that you are not at home Why should I feel like a jerk especially if I'm not the one who made you a victim of love Why should I, why should I..

You look so disappointed tonight
Do we have any reason not to
go out and make it all right,
before the time has come to leave you