Break The Silence, Loud & Clear

Tear me down as it heals, one more time it takes to feel. Don't be afraid, I will forgive it all sure enough,

And make the change that you're speaking of, as I pull this sheet over your frozen face.

My time is running out, it's not a race. I'll be the one who is still in need. As it's getting dark, I still look around for that spark. I am afraid. I can't begin to think of this place as I pull this sheet over your frozen face.

I can't begin to think of this place as I pull this sheet over your frozen face.

My time is running out. It's not a race. I'll be the one who is Still in need.

It's been here so long that we run from it violently.

Forty-two nights turned into days. Never again will I go away. Forty-two nights turned into days. Never again will I go away. Forty-two nights turned into days. Never again will I go away. Forty-two nights turned into days. Never again will I go away.

It's been here so long that we run from it violently.