

Brian Webb, Bigger Than I Am

I want to love bigger than I am I want a hope bigger than I am
And I wanted to leave you bigger than I am

I wish I could lie to you Just to put your mind at ease I wish I could tell you the truth with softer words than these And I wish I could lay here forever
'til I understand
Bigger than I am

I'm sorry, I just think my nature was set in motion in the beginning of time like wave that starts
somewhere in the middle of the ocean and I stand where it breaks over me with the strength of 12,000 years
Bigger than I am

Well you broke through the ice
And now you're trying to figure out why its so cold here Knowing where I ought to be, that does not make me there But I am on my way. I want to love for love sake, But I just started walking
Bigger than I am

And I'm not gonna stay here and act like I'm fine I'm sorry I needed your love to learn about mine I'm sorry if I blamed you. I know you're doing what you can But all of this is bigger, this is bigger than I am

I am sorry, I just think my nature
was set in motion in the beginning of time
like wave that starts
somewhere in the middle of the ocean
and I stand where it breaks over me
with the strength of 12,000 years
