

Bright Eyes, Tereza And Thomas

let's sail away past the noise of the bay let's sail away past the birth and death of the day let's sail away to where the blues and greens swirl into gray let's sail away
let's sail away past the cradle of these waves let's sail away past the tide and its slow decay let's sail away to where the water goes-some endless open space
let's sail away
take only what you need, my love, and leave the rest behind don't be afraid of where we'll go, my love i promise you will be fine now you are the only one that's mine let's sail away past the reflections of the light let's sail away floating weightless through the night let's sail away like a photograph, fading to all white it's finally all right forget all the mistakes my love they won't be made again leave the photos in the drawer, my love we no longer need them we both know where we've been let's sail away disappearing in a mist let's sail away with a whisper and a kiss or vanish from a road somewhere, like tereza and tomas, suspended in this bliss.