Brooke Hogan, Beautiful Transformation

Beautiful Transformation
It's that beautiful transformation
The older I get the more often I get feelings I can't explain mostly in the the 99 percent of things I did not say I've suddenly evolved from nothing at all to somewhat lady like my clothes begin to fit and my jeans they hug my hips to catch the young boys eyes

Let me question (still I'm guessing) fascination with a beautiful transformation

Like a butterfly changing into my own skin
And the tears I cry by the latest sign to win It's that beautiful transformation I'm in Stack$
Now how's it gonna be and where you gonna go like Truman everyone's tuned to your show talkin like they know Brooke they don't really know story of the real you that's an episode ya livin in the shadows fightin different battles posing like a glass mold a fake life makes you want to fast forward to a time in your life when everything was natural I see kids superficial as the crib and all those diss never fazed you miss its like they never know unless I'm tellin them girl that you an anomaly that came in my world when there is a problem you will handle it first and make the pain go away so it doesn't get worse whatcha do everything you sayin is true they just tend to transform but they can't spoil you

Let me question (still I'm guessing)

fascination it's beautiful transformation
Like a butterfly changing into my own skin
And the tears I cry by the latest sign to win
It's that beautiful transformation I'm in Now I can shake my hips with the confidence that i got this knowing that i control what i got is priceless every little part of me that i have is precious it's that beautiful it's that beautiful
It's that beautiful transformation
Like a butterfly changing into my own skin
And the tears I cry by the latest sign to win
