

Bruce Dickinson, Strange death in paradise

Spiralling falling, a silver machine from wings of freedom silent above eyelids were burning, summer