

Burton Cummings, Is It Really Right

And in a moment's time the youth and the sunlight are all gone
You're in a dimly lit room, wonderin' how you're gonna carry on

Is it really right, is it really right?
Is it really, really feelin' right?

Climb, there's no ceiling now for you
Soar and forget what you might do
Another love is won or lost in the turn of a card
Sittin' with an old friend talkin' wonderin' why it has to be so hard

Is it really right, is it really right?
Is it really, really feelin' right?

Ooh, where does the time go?
Ooh, where does the love that's lost end up, I wanna know?
Ooh, where do the years run so fast
Hold on
Hold on

Fly, just swoop and soar and spin
Glide above what you have been
And in a moment's time the youth and the sunlight are all gone
You're in a dimly lit room, wonderin' how you're gonna carry on

Is it really right, is it really right?
Is it really, really feelin' right?

Is it really right?
Is it really right?
I hear the young girls cryin'
I hear the young men sighin'
Every day, every night
I keep on wonderin' is it really right?
