

By Heart, Someone To Die For

He moves across the city like a ghost
He's another troubled soul who cannot see the light at the end of the road
He stopped to believe in the father above
He's ready to stumble, ready to fall, ready to reach out for nothing at all
He's all alone, he's all alone, he's all alone you see
Wherever it will take him, wherever he may go, wherever it will lead to nothing but cold
He never got an answer to the one thing he just has to know
Is he someone to die for?

Let it go, let it go let it be forever gone
Let me know, let me know let me know which way to go
'cause whenever you fall I'll be there if you call
Let it go, let it go let it be forever gone
Let me know, let me know let me know which way to go before I leave

He walks along St. Patrick's road which leads him to his home,
A house that stands alone
And as if the walls were breathing they tell him the truth
The woman he needs is giving her love
To someone she cares for and not to this ghost
Who's ready to reach for his key to the door
He steps inside, he walks the floor, he's ready as can be
He stands beside the bed now; he looks her in the eye
He pulls he's gun and shoot and then falls down and die
He never got to tell her the one thing she just has to know
That she's someone to die for

Let it go, let it go let it be forever gone
Let me know, let me know let me know which way to go
'cause whenever you fall I'll be there if you call

Let it go, let it go let it be forever gone
Let me know, let me know let me know which way to go before I leave
