Catherine Wheel, Texture

Safe on the shore I've been sleeping Faced by the thoughts I've been keeping To break down the door of my life I need more texture You need to give me more texture, texture, texture You need to give me more texture So deep inside I've been dreaming In a space too confined, too concealing It's a race to remind you of days I can't find You need to give me more texture, texture, texture You need to give me more To break down the door of my life I need more texture You need to give me more You need to give me more Texture, texture, texture You need to give me more texture, texture
