Chaka Khan, The Other Side Of The World

(Michael Rutherford and B. A. Robertson)

A penny has two faces When one of them you have to choose Between the two places One must win and one must lose

You say you have a sense of freedom Whenever you're away from here Put your hand on your heart and tell me That you never shed a tear

Aw, what you doing babe On the other side of the world With all those fancy girls Never believe their hearts are stone They may warm your bed when you're alone But I can warm your heart and soul On the other side of the world

Life is only snakes and ladders Sometimes up and sometimes down It doesn't really matter baby When you got love around

Aw, but you won't find that lovin', no On the other side of the world With all those crazy girls Never believe their hearts are stone They may warm your bed when you're alone But I can warm your heart and soul On the other side of the world

I'll be waitin' for you Never believe their hearts are stone They may warm your bed when you're alone But I can warm your heart and soul On the other side of the world On the other side of the world
