

Chemical Vocation, Walls

i hope you'll find your if's when last precautions made and you've failed to change the world from underneath this roof you thought would keep you sane and awake from an eversetting sun something you will never touch and you will always deny looking for a name to fill the lies a last resort for every hole that out love will never fill something i can never trust and i will never see why looking for a lie to suit the name
i owe this piece of heart to them and the will to make a choice
i stand corrected now everything it takes and every line thats in between to laugh between the tears when everything gone down to these last and critical goodbyes and when the timers set a million eyes will stare at the flames of an everlasting fire
something you will never touch
and you will always deny
looking for a name to fill the lies
a last resort for every hole that out love will never fill
something i can never trust
and i will never see why
looking for a lie to suit the name
i owe this piece of heart to them and the will to make a choice
i stand corrected now
everything it takes and every line thats in between the safe and sound i will fail to remain this soulless being for long and play it all with heart