

Chuck Wicks, The Easy Part

Sometimes love aint enough
And theres times
When just givin up is alright
No matter how much you want it to work
Someones gonna get hurt
Sometimes it aint about whos wrong
And as bad as you want to hold on
The right thing to do is to get out
Right now
Before its too late
Yea the hardest part of leaving
Is picking up the keys
And finding the nerve to start that car
The first night is the longest
Youre waking up alone
And you find out how strong you really are
But the rest is the easy part
Before long
The phones gonna ring
And youll want
To answer his call
But, girl dont
Have the same conversation over and over
So let it be over
Yea the hardest part of leaving
Is picking up the keys
And finding the nerve to start that car
The first night is the longest
Youre waking up alone
And you find out how strong you really are
But the rest is the easy part
Theres an open road
Theres a life ahead
But even thought you cant see it yet
Ooo, just take a chance
Pick up your keys
Oh and find the nerve
Yea to start your car
The rest is the easy part
Yea the hardest part of leaving
Is picking up the keys
And finding the nerve to start that car
The first night is the longest
Youre waking up alone
And you find out how strong you really are
But the rest is the easy part
