

Clear, You're In The Sunset

Her golden treasures
Radiate from skies above
Vast flowing colors
Form a symbol of Your love

Oh no she can't touch you
Oh no she can't see you
But Your splendor's all around her she says

I don't need to see You, You're in the sunset
As You descend my shadow dies
Yellow fades in red horizons
I don't need to see You, You're in the sunset

She comes at dusk
When the waters always clearer
So she can see that perfect image
Glowing off an endless mirror

Oh no she can't touch you
Oh no she can't see you
But your splendor's all around her she says

I don't need to see You, You're in the sunset
As You descend my shadow dies
Yellow fades in red horizons
I don't need to see You, You're in the sunset

I cast my doubts
Far away from such a hand
That paints these inspirations
So my mind can understand, now I say...

I don't need to see You, You're in the sunset
As You descend my shadow dies
Yellow fades in red horizons
I don't need to see You, You're in the sunset (2x)