

Clint Black, Who I Use To Be

Clint Black & Marty Stuart

The memories and emotions
That I've been through
Are things I can't unlearn
But I won't go on standing on the bridges
You've tried so hard to burn.

I can't put those fires out
And let somebody in
If everything my life's about
Is who we might've been
Till we forget the love we lost
We won't remember how to love again.

Chorus:
That's who I used to be
Holding onto nothing
Giving everything I used to be
To belong to someone
That I know is who
I used to see when I looked at you
You were never who I used to see
That's who I use to be,
And I'm not who I used to be

Coming to my senses now
I'm feeling things I thought I couldn't feel
I don't take for granted if it feels like love
It must not be real

I still find myself out on
Some bridges now and then
I'm stuck out in the middle
Trying to reach the other end
But I'm through holding back the flames
To show somebody how to love, again

Chorus:
That's who I use to be
Holding onto nothing
Giving everything I use to be
To belong to someone
That I know is who
I use to see when I looked at you
You were never who I use to see
That's who I use to be,
And I'm not who I use to be.

That's who I use to be,
And I'm not who I use to be...