

Connie Smith, I Know You're Going Away

I know the heartaches are coming cause I know you're going away

There's no gladness in your voice when you say darling

There's no sweetness in your lips when they meet mine

There's no feeling in your arms when they're around me

How much plainer could you say it's goodbye time

I know the heartaches are coming I know the skies will turn grey

I know the the tears will start falling cause I know you're going away

[steel]

Hearts that were friends now are strangers eyes that could see now are blind

Only tomorrows of sorrow from the day that you leave me behind

I know the heartaches are coming...
