Cord, Never Been

I am drowning much to fast for time I can recognize Simple meanings seem so real when you know where you got to go I don't know how I get so down It's never been this good It's never been this good It's never been this good If words don't hurt then how do I ever say what I want to say Caring smiles open arms what I found, when I turned around How do you tell this life from hell All of the times that you said that is wasn't for real Feelings inside that I often can never reveal It's expected of me when I am always so eager to say It's all ok Cause it seems that I've been found in the crowd
