

Covenant, Invisible Silence

I'm tricked by your smile want to be forgiven
waiting for the battle aching for belief
but your answer is wrong and my spirit is broken like choirs in the winter singing out of key
I am silent
invisible to you
while I count the days gone by
I am silent
invisible to you
while I shape the things to come I try so hard to fight for an illusion holding my breath
biting my tongue
I try to cope
so give me a reason I'm waiting for help I'm trapped by my guilt want to be forgotten
tired of the noise
aching for relief
but your anger is gone and my silence is golden like fires on the water drifting out of reach
I am silent