

Crematory, An Other...?

Mistakes, done over and over again Voices, heard over and over again Escape from one's self Escape into salvation
One word - one gesture and everything is over Long silence - empty thoughts Escape into another phase Escape from reality
An other life - an other death - an other destination - an other self
An other life - an other death - an other destination - an
other self
An other life - an other death - an other destination - an
other self
An other life - an other death - an other destination - an
other self
The leprous sign branded onto the forehead
Like stricken by disease Guilt sought by one's self
The guilt of salvation
The night passes - silence remains Unsolved questions remain as a wall
The guilt of the other phase
The guilt out of fear of reality
An other life - an other death - an other destination - an
other self
An other life - an other death - an other destination - an
other self
An other life - an other death - an other destination - an
other self
An other life - an other death - an other destination - an other self