

Cross Canadian Ragweed, Mexican Sky

ever since you went away the sun hasn't been out to shine and clouds they been dropping their blues on me and rainy day blues are mine and i don't care how far you roam just as long as you come back home with those words of iron forged by the fire

in the heart of a lonely man

i've been wanting to tell you that its rained ever day that you've been away clouds are crying and I'm surviving thinking about you down in old mexico i'm thinking about you down in old mexico i know that the rain it doesn't last forever and seasons they keep rolling on and absence doesn't make every heart grown fonder the sun shines so bright in the mexican sky

i don't care if you never come home
with those words of iron

i'm thinking about you down in old mexico
