

Cryptal Darkness, They Whispered You Had Risen

(Music and Lyrics By Mark Kelson)

For centuries I've walked this world alone immersed in the serenity of the shadows filled with the blood of life between your world and mine. . . help me

They whispered you had risen your love means more than life itself your neck burns with uncontrollable pain that won't cease until you rest in the shadows

The dark air of the night so cold
I can show you truth beyond your dreams your fiery tears they seared me as we stared into the candles flame how do you comprehend a bond of such intentioned sacrifice I plead with the darkness your skin is of purest ivory and as you weep I catch your ebony tears we melt in our hidden desire. . .

Please submit your soul to me to become my destiny I beckon to you through the mist of the everlasting rain spill your blood stop our pain be my bride of darkness you are me and I am you forever. . .

The pale moon it comes alive in your eyes I weep why must the sun ever rise for in this darkness your radiance consumes me for this I give you life. . . eternal

They whispered you had risen
your love means more than life itself
your neck burns with uncontrollable pain
that won't cease until you rest in the shadows

The dark air of the night so cold
I can show you truth beyond your dreams
your fiery tears they seared me
as we stared into the candles flame

Death it yields immortality as the darkened wind cries your name as you leave your mortal dread your blood fills me with ecstasy together at last I now know that I can be free. . .