Cult Of Luna, Following Betulas

Awaken in the silent night.

Alone, inland hysteria. I am a stranger in this land. Here I kneel before you.

Oh, solemn glory.

Standing together on the hill. Nothing is spoken, but yet understood. Below, a procession of wooden men. Swinging their tree trunks in the wind.

The white birches are alive, they are marching.