

Cyco Miko, It's Always Something

It's always something

It's always something that does me wrong I try to ditch it, it tags along

It's always something of that I'm sure, but I don't know why or what they were

Facing choices I can't make living up to another mistake it's always something

Problems building up in my face the answers leave without a trace it's always something

It's always, always, always something! it's always something!

It's always something that's what I've found when I start sailing it brings me down

It's always something happens to me can't find the honey stung by the bee

It's always something that chases me I run my fastest it catches me

It's always something but never good if I could kill it you know I would

Facing choices I can't make living up to another mistake it's always something

Playing games I don't wanna play it's not worth it anyway it's always something

It's always, always, always, always, always something! it's always something

It's always something that comes my way I try to ditch it wants to play

It's always something at least I know I feel it coming I gotta go

Facing choices I can't make living up to another mistake it's always something

Problems building up in my face the answers leave without a trace it's always something

Facing choices I can't make living: up to another mistake it's always something

Playing games I don't wanna play it's not worth winning anyway it's always something

It's always (7k) something it's always something

It's always something, it's always something, it's always something and it's happening again

It's always something at least I know I feel it coming I got to go
