

Daan, Love

It's the nature of things to always want a new love so we drive into the night pass those roadblocks when I look into your eyes I see deep love and I'm staring at your face times have been rough whenever something's so bright hide your new love we both know that we lied but still want a brand new love and we hopelessly try to be coy enough can I welcome your pride can I welcome starfreight half of most days you love her and always read between the lines there's this something more hard than heavy the heavenly crime
but there is a brand new love like a renegade losing memory I can't stand it when you hold me hate me painfully rising too that it's only love just a brand new love fight your love fight your love for me when I look into your ryes I see deep love bet we're never choosing side run to get caught whenever something's so bright hide from new love you've got something to hide if you still want a brand new love every day's a wonder but a miracle week's too long try to seperate hell from heaven when you know that they rhyme

but there is a brand new love
like a renegade losing memory
I can't stand it when you hold me hate me painfully rising too that it's only love just a brand new love just a brand new love fight the love fight the love in you fight the love deeper love than you