David Gray, December

All my tears will dry away All my tears will dry away All my tears will dry away Words don't bother me no more Black money falling to the floor Flags out on the balconies Black money washing to the seas Oh my mind What happened to the time December

All my house got blown away All my house got blown away All my house and all my home Walls of glass and walls of stone Got blown away

Stations in the neon light Your body strange as dynamite Killers underneath our skins Black mirrors black hyacinths Oh my eyes What happened to the skies December December December
