David Gray, Gutters Full Of Rain

A gutter full of rain
An empty picture frame
A house out at the edges of the city
Never noticing the war
Til it's right there at your door
And suddenly your hands are bloody

I was seeking to possess Now another girl's caress Is on your flesh The bitterness is tasted There's nobody in your chair No hand to touch my hair The sun even the air seems wasted

Let it go now Let it all slip away And we'll start it all over again Me like a million others before Trying to make sense of the rain

Were these twenty years a dream Was it ever as it seemed Get to wonder if it really existed Cause the thief who stole my life Has taken too my faith I can see now how the world gets Twisted

Let it go now Let it all slip away And we'll start it all over again Me like a million others before Trying to make sense of the rain

In spite of all the shame
Sometimes I hear your name
I think of us when we were younger
Then I'm shutting out the noise
And I'm trying to hear the voice
That used to tell me love was Stronger

Light another cigarette
But the one I got's still lit
I can't seem to keep my fingers
Steady
Never noticing the war
Til it's right there at your door
And suddenly your hands are bloody
