

Dead Infection, Tragedy At The Railway Station

A ordinary railway-station. Platforms, tracks, people with their luggage. A train arrives. It's 30 minutes late. But passengers have finally seen it coming up. Compartments fill up quickly. After 10 minutes there are no free seats left. Some people have to stand in the corridor. After a while the train leaves. It moves faster and faster. All the same time a 47-years-old-woman runs along a platform. She's a bit late, but tries to open the wagon's door and get in. After 2 seconds the woman trips against her big bag and gets under the train. Its wheels cut her legs up to her tighs. the woman screams, but the wheels crush her cranium and chest. Now comes the silence broken only by the engine's blast.