Dead Moon, Not The Only One

I'm not the only one, the only lonely one You know who you are, afraid to lose your hearts You sit in the corners of a world gone square You can see them but to them you'r not there Did you ever wonder why you'r stranger than - close?

I'm not the only one who's tired of the gun
There must be something more than marching off to war
Bleeding in the trenches 'neath a 90 lb pack
18 years old and never coming back
How can their dying ever make us feel - free?

I'm not the only one trying to get ahead Working everyday harder than I'm paid Going through changes - working my job Thinking things be better if I get on top With everybody yelling "Hey, what about me/me?"
