

Deadsun, Hold Me Down

I'm your neighbor. I'm your neighbor's son.
Do you remember? Was I the only one?
I'm your neighbor. I'm your neighbor's son.
Do you remember? Do you still remember?

I've been having problems.
I thought that you should know.
You betrayed my innocence.
So many years ago.

I thought you were my friend.
But that was just pretend.
Your righteous smile, so galovent, betrays you in the end.

You still hold me down, after all that I've been through.
You still hold me down, well I can't take it! Can't take it!

Meanwhile the ones who love you, they do the best they can.
When the truth is more than they can take, buried there is in the sand.

I thought you were my friend.
But that was just pretend.
Your righteous smile, so galovent, betrays you in the end.

You still hold me down, after all that I've been through.
You still hold me down, but I can't take it anymore.
You still hold me down, after all that I've been through.
You still hold me down, but I can't take it.

I feel the same, I feel the pain holding me down, dragging me down.

You still hold me down, after all that I've been through.
You still hold me down, but I can't take it.
But you still hold me down, you still hold me down.
Well I can't take it!