Dean Martin, La Paloma

When I left Havana nobody saw me go But my little gaucho maid who loves me so She came down the pathway following after me That same little gaucho maid that I longed to see If at your window you see a gentle dove Treat it with care and welcome it there with love It may be so I do not deny its glee Crown it with flowers grant love its hours for me

Oh my darling be mine Won't you say that you love me All my passions so tender oh please surrender your love divine Ah my darling be mine Won't you say that you love me Oh my passions so tender oh please surrender your love divine

Oh my darling be mine Won't you say that you love me All my passions so tender oh please surrender your love divine
