Deep Purple, Wait A While

Wait before you go So you will know, what I am feeling as you leave I understand, your need for some time Some solitude

Wait a while, before you go You should know by now, my heart belongs to you

I know that you must leave And I can see, that it's not easy for you, now that I'll be here, I know that my soul Is always near you

Wait a while before you go You should know by now I love you and so I will wait a while For you

The sand of time is slipping through my fingers You and I, still the memories linger on And on

Now I know that if I can only let go And wait a while, you'll be here again with me The same old friends we've always been

Wait a while before you go You should know by now I love you and so I will wait a while Wait a while Wait a while For you