Delirious?, All God's Children

Light will come to those who wait From the shadows souls awake For these are the days when the nations will bow at the coming king

All our kingdoms fall with the mountains And our empires crash into the sea For these are the days when the nations will rise for the coming king

All gods children we will sing hallelujah

Hope will come to those who wait As the heart of heaven breaks For these are the days when the least of us all see the coming king For these are the days when injustice will fall at the coming king

There will come a day when this will all fall away And we'll be singing hallelujah