

Delta Goodrem, Doesn't Matter Now

It's finally come
Is that sorry on your breath,
Where were you when I was sitting back here
Missing you to death?
Don't matter now

How? I wanna know
Can you tell me plain and true?
How high will you fly
Without me there to be your sky?
Well, it don't matter now

Don't mean to leave you standing on your own
I think back on days and nights we had long ago
Maybe love is just a game you play
This much I do know
It don't matter now

It's finally come
Is that sorry on your breath,
Where were you when I was sitting back here
Missing you to death?
It don't matter now

Now I don't tell stories
And I don't pretend
And I won't be around to say I told you then
'Cause it seems like something's finally broken
That'll take a while to mend
But it don't matter now

Is that sorry on your breath,
Where were you when I was sitting back here
Missing you to death?
It don't matter now
It don't matter now
It don't matter now