

Delta Goodrem, Electric Storm

Fighting for no reward

Cold in the rain I'm tossing and turning your words ever burning my heart

Love's an electric storm of pleasure and pain where thunder and lightening are crashing And Striking us down

Two people shipwrecked

Stranded alone

Praying for dry land to save our souls

Hurricane season just knocked us down

Emotional suicides running the ground

Fighting for no reward

Cold in the rain I'm tossing and turning your words ever burning my heart

Love's an electric storm of pleasure and pain where thunder and lightening are crashing And Striking us

I won't give up never never

I won't be struck by the weather

Hold on when the wind's so strong

Tell me how can we find our way home in love's electric storm

Feels like our last chance to get out alive

Will we survive this treachous night

Predators waiting circling around

Sky full of fireworks burn without sound

Fighting for no reward

Cold in the rain I'm tossing and turning your words ever burning my heart

Love's an electric storm of pleasure and pain where thunder and lightening are crashing And Striking us

I won't give up never never

I won't be struck by the weather

Hold on when the wind's so strong

Tell me how can we find our way home in loves electric storm

Have we never been stronger?

Have we never been tighter?

But we're close to the wire again

Have we never been safer?

Fighting for no reward

Cold in the rain I'm tossing and turning your words ever burning my heart

Love's an electric storm of pleasure and pain where thunder and lightening are crashing And Striking us down

I won't give up never never

I won't be struck by the weather

Hold on when the wind's so strong

Tell me how can we find our way home

Tell me how can we find our way home

In love's electric storm
