

Denison Witmer, Broken

You hate what I said
You're scared that there
Might be some truth inside all of this
That makes your life look bad

There's still more to this
You said that you
Have to go make what you want of this
It's not just you involved
It's not just you involved

What happened to the girl I used to know
What happened to the girl I've always loved

I hate what you did
I'm scared that I
Might have to let go for good this time
So I get out of line

There's still more to this
I think that you
Know how you hurt me so deep inside
And if you don't then you should know
If you don't then you should know

There's no doubt that we could get through this There's no doubt that you have left him in
There's no doubts that I need to forgive
There's no doubt that I might stay broken